The peer-reviewed journal Intergenerational Justice Review (IGJR) aims to improve our understanding of intergenerational justice and sustainable development through pure and applied research. The IGJR (ISSN 2190-6335) is an open-access journal that is published on a professional level with an extensive international readership. The editorial board comprises over 50 international experts from ten countries, representing eight disciplines. Published contributions do not reflect the opinions of the Foundation for the Rights of Future Generations (FRFG) or the Intergenerational Foundation (IF). Citations from articles are permitted upon accurate quotation and submission of one sample of the incorporated citation to FRFG or IF. All other rights are reserved.

Editors of the IGJR

Chief Editor

Jörg Tremmel holds two PhDs, one in philosophy and one in social sciences, and he is an Extraordinary Professor at Eberhard Karls University of Tübingen. From 2010 to 2016, Tremmel was the incumbent of a Junior Professorship for Intergenerationally Just Policies at the same university. Before, he was a research fellow at the London School of Economics and Political Science, both at its Centre for Philosophy of Natural and Social Science and (part-time) at the Grantham Institute for Climate Change Research. Tremmel's research interests lie mainly in political theory/political philosophy.

Co-Editor

Ayesha Zafar completed her Erasmus Mundus Joint Master's in Security, Intelligence, and Strategic Studies at the University of Glasgow. She has worked with several research institutes, gaining experience in geopolitical risk analysis, threat assessment, and broader security and strategic affairs, and has also trained with NATO's Civil-Military Cooperation Centre of Excellence.

Co-Editor

Jason Adolph is currently studying his master's degree in international security and law at the University of Southern Denmark in Odense. His research focuses on the interactions between climate change, human rights, sustainable peacebuilding, international humanitarian law and the environment, and international security.
